I have had the rare privilege of teaching diverse aspects of English in three different countries, namely Oman, Seychelles and Kenya; thereby acquiring profound multicultural skills and awareness. Through the experience gained by training and mentoring learners of myriad ages, educational levels and language abilities; I strongly believe that a holistic understanding of an educational context, and the appreciation of all its variables and dynamics are the cornerstone of effective language teaching and learning. This is what compels me to steadily improve my pedagogical skills through ongoing professional development and advanced academic training.
