Teaching Philosophy:

I am a person inclined towards optimism and serenity with deep-rooted faith in God. I tried to see the best in everyone and utilize every opportunity to the maximum. Facing challenges indomitably; I am always keen on loving in the present.

My view of the teaching profession is that every student is an incomparable, unique person with immense potential. Students have to be given adequate space to identify, harness and develop their different abilities.

As a teacher, I attend to their various difficulties with due concern and nurture their innate qualities in such a way that the society can reap its benefits. Rather than being a strict tutor, I am more of a friend to my students, promoting the holistic development of their intellectual, emotional and social arenas, thereby, guiding them to their goals.
